

Can you break a twenty-dollar bill?

Jackie has a 20-dollar bill and wants to break it so that she may have some smaller bills and change for the laundry.

Cashier: Good morning! How may I help you?

Jackie: Could you break a 20 for me?

Cashier: Sure. How do you want it?

Jackie: Could I have two 5's and the rest in ones?

Cashier: Well, I have some 5's, but I don't have enough 1's. Are quarters fine with you?

Jackie: Oh, that's even better! In that case, I won't have to worry about the small change for the laundry.

Cashier: Here you go!

Jackie: Thanks a million!

Vocabularies:

Bills- to present a statement of costs or charges to.

Laundry- a room or an area, as in a house, for doing the wash.

Enough- sufficient to meet a need or satisfy a desire

Case- a question or problem; a matter

Break- to divide into pieces, as by bending or cutting

Practice:

A: Good _____, how _____ I _____ you?

B: Could you _____ a _____ for me?

A: _____ I have two _____ and the rest in _____?

B: Well, I have some _____ but I _____ have _____ 1's.